Abstract. It is now well recognized that employees can develop multiple work-relevant commitments, and that commitment itself is a multidimensional construct. Unfortunately, there remains considerable disagreement, both within and across work commitment literatures (e.g., organizational, occupational, union), about what commitment is, its dimensionality, how it develops, and how it affects behavior.

Committed employees take ownership of their work and are ambassadors for their company, both inside and outside of office doors. They are less likely to job hunt, be tempted by recruiters who seek out passive candidates and are most likely to pursue advancements and promotions. The value of employee commitment is palpable — in more ways than one.
