The geophysical prospecting method adopted for this study is the Vertical Electrical Sounding (VES) techniques of the electrical resistivity method. The ABEM SAS-1000 terrameter was employed. For adequate depth penetration, the Schlumberger electrode configuration was used with maximum current electrode separation (AB/2) of 100 m.

Dobrin received his Ph.d. at Columbia University in 1950 under Ewing. While at Columbia, he taught courses in geophysics and he soon expanded his lecture notes into his famous book Introduction to Geophysical Prospecting. It is, without question, one of the most influential publications in the history of exploration because it has served as the fundamental text for at least two generations of geophysicists.
