Unlike Visual Basic, C# doesn't have built-in string methods to extract parts of string from the Left, Right or a location specified through Mid. Unfortunately you have to create the logic yourself. Here are examples of Left, Right and Mid in C# with the use of the Substring method present in C# (and VB):

```
class LeftRightMid {
[STAThread] static void Main (string [] args) { string myString = "This is a string";
//Get 4 characters starting from the left Console.WriteLine (Left (myString,4));
